Conflict Management and Resolution in Nigeria

Nigeria is Africa's largest oil producing country. Oil generates enormous wealth but also extensive and devastating environmental degradation as well as community conflicts. The oil curse manifests itself in the oil conflict, which stems from the interplay and consequences of high stake politics for the reproduction and persistence of the conflict. It presents a conceptual anatomy of state-oil industry-society relations and demonstrates how the oil conflict is embedded in and complicate both the oil conflict and security. In addition, the book provides key insights into comparable conflicts elsewhere in the global south, developing a logical framework for resolving the oil conflict in Nigeria and for reforming the oil sector and economy, social ecology, development studies, African politics, conflict and security studies, and environmental law and management. It will also be of interest to policy practitioners, civil societies and the oil industry.

Attah on Resource Control

African Affairs

Nigeria, a People United, a Future Assured: Survey of states

Newswatch

The News

Basic Notes on Nigerian Nationalism

Journal of Development Alternatives and Area Studies

Violence Today

The North Carolina journal of international law and commercial regulation